

Welcoming you all to Boise

I encourage visitors to Boise to visit the following, all within easy walking distance of the conference center:

- Anne Frank Human Rights Memorial (<https://annefrankmemorial.org/>), which is also frequently used as the location for candlelight vigils and other actions.
- Idaho Black History Museum in Julia Davis Park
- the coverage of Native American tribal in the recently redone Idaho State Museum, also in Julia Davis Park, which was created with significant involvement of tribal representatives.

In addition, here are some self-guided wildflower walk options:

<https://boisefrontnature.com/>

All of these are within an hour's drive of downtown Boise, an area broadly defined as the Boise Front

The current list is indexed at <https://boisefrontnature.com/specieslist/>

Feel free to contact me about particular species or genera.

See you this Summer!

Barbara Ertter

bjertter@gmail.com

Aase's onion (Allium aaseae)